

Igor Bondar

Andrey Bizyukin

BLACK

&

WHITE

Igor Bondar
Andrey Bizyukin

BLACK & WHITE

A photo story

“Zolotoye sechenie“ private publishers
2 0 1 7

What we see sometimes can differ greatly from the reality.

Photo by Igor Bondar and Andrey Bizyukin.

“Zolotoye sechenie“ private publishers.

Copyright © Igor Bondar, 2017

Copyright © Andrey Bizyukin, 2017

Copyright © Design: „Zolotoye sechenie“, 2017

*We are often and undoubtedly accustomed to believe in what we see.
But is everything so unambiguous
in this world?*

*Sometimes it is a bit more complicated.
So, for example, we rarely think that darkness is...*

*...just an absence of light
in this place.*

And the land is...

just an absence of water.

*The same applies to feelings.
For example, loneliness is...*

just an absence of a good friend nearby.

Our hostility is always...

...an absence of love,

...and insidious plans are...

an absence of benevolence.

Lie is always...

*an absence
of truth
and openness.*

Laziness is an absence of...

*interesting plans
and hobbies in life.*

Our shortage of funds is...

EQUATOR
Lat. 0° 0' 0"

...often a result of our unwillingness to work.

Not very high intellectuality is...

*...often a consequence
of unwillingness to study.*

Although overabundance of knowledge...

A raccoon is the central focus of the image, looking directly at the camera through a silver chain-link fence. The raccoon's face is framed by the diamond-shaped mesh, with its dark eyes and black mask-like markings clearly visible. Its fur is a mix of brown, tan, and grey. The raccoon's front paws are resting on the top of the fence, and its hind legs are also visible, gripping the lower part of the mesh. The background is a blurred green, suggesting an outdoor setting like a park or zoo. The overall mood is one of confinement and longing.

...sometimes
...sometimes
closes us off
from simplicity,
simplicity,

...and especially from a fairytale.

And now about different types of depression that we are trying to fight with food,

...or positive thinking,

...or something else...

In fact depression is, again, an absence of light. But this time in our souls.

So, we need to contemplate these questions thoroughly and attentively.

But then might happen that most of our dead ends in life suddenly begin to change...

*into the reliable
and beautiful bridges.*

Free books Download

www.DolphinsDivingDreams.org

Igor N. Bondar
Andrey V. Bizyukin

BLACK & WHITE

What we see sometimes can differ greatly from the reality

www.DolphinsDivingDreams.org

