What do ships dream about?

The background of the entire page is a dense, overlapping collection of seashells in various shades of white, cream, and light brown. The shells are scattered across the frame, creating a textured and organic backdrop for the text.

What do ships dream about?

Do ships have their own dreams?
Let's try to answer this question in detail.

Ships can be different.

They can be enormous...

*...but they can also be very small.
And captains on them can be various as well ...*

...from primitive,

... to advanced,

...and further, up to the perfect ones.

But whatever the ship may be,

*...and whoever
may stand
at its helm,*

...it will always have its own dreams and character, in any case.

We tried to find out more about this and asked different ships about their dreams - ...

... the ships of different purpose,

... and in various parts of the world.

And here is what we found out.

Actually, if you think that ships dream of huge propellers,

... or powerful engines, then you are greatly mistaken.

Only captains dream about all of this, as well as about northern seas, distant journeys and the like.

That is why all ships are afraid of hyperactive captains, and even more, future captains with artificial intelligence.

Ships dream of completely different things.

They just want a calm sea and fun passengers,

... beautiful views around,

*...and various photo sessions
on the deck.*

In the evenings, ships like to stand in calm harbors and chat to each other in a relaxing manner.

Besides, all the ships dream of retirement.

*Some of them, at the end of their lifetime,
want to settle somewhere at the bottom,*

*...in order to
breed fish
and divers
close by.*

*Another, on the contrary,
wants to climb higher*

*Others prefer to dock on the beach
and open a small shop there.*

*And there are ships that
want to drop
their last
anchor on land
in order to grow masts
inside
themselves.*

Well, that's all we managed to learn about the dreams of the ships.
