A person is a big world of various feelings and desires.

These feelings can be healthy and beautiful,

*...and can be
not good enough.
But we are going to talk only about
good things.*

*So, let us
start first
from various interesting hobbies...*

They can be active. The simple example of such a hobby is fishing.

Hobbies could be more difficult like surfing or...

...diving, for example.

They also could be very difficult – like, for instance, walking upside down on the underwater ice...

*...or pelicans feeding from,
ehm... behind the back.*

The range of passive entertainments is also vast. Here you can find the night-time shark sculpturing on the sand,

... decorating an old car with old toys,

*...manufacturing a vehicle
with seats for new sensations,*

*...producing self-utilizing
furniture made of ice and many others.*

There are also energetic pleasures. For example, dolmen-therapy,

...parrot-relax,

...herd instincts searching,

...or hamster-yoga.

All these and other hobbies, entertainments and desires are of course very important and interesting for us.

*However,
there is something
more elevated in our kingdom
of feelings.*

Pleasures alone cannot fill our hearts to the brim.

Then what can do it?

Of course! It's only and always love.

Without it, any place will become dull and boring as the time goes by.

*And
with love
everything
acquires light
and meaning.*

And even if we have nothing, but love – ...

...we are wealthy.

If we do not have love, we are always poor.

So then our kingdom of feelings just resembles a beautiful cage.
